The US Department of Education states the family has the primary responsibility for meeting the educational costs of students. Dependent students are required by law to provide parental information and consent to be considered for financial aid. Regulations allow financial aid administrators to use professional judgments in cases where unusual circumstances prevent a student from being able to provide parental information on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), commonly referred to as a dependency override or appeal.

We provide an appeal process for dependent students with unusual circumstances, which may result in being considered for independent status. Dependency overrides are reviewed on a case-by-case basis, all documentation will be kept confidential. All decisions made by the College of Eastern Idaho Financial Aid Office are FINAL.

Please allow 3-4 weeks for processing. We reserve the right to delay review of any appeal where reasonable projections cannot be made.

The following are examples of some unusual circumstances:	The following DO NOT qualify as unusual circumstances:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ You left home due to an abusive or threatening environment ➤ Parental abandonment or estrangement ➤ You do not know where your parents are and are unable to contact them (and you have not been adopted) ➤ Your parents are deceased; or incarcerated ➤ Human trafficking, refugee or asylum status 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Parents refusing to contribute to your education ➤ Parents will not provide information for the FAFSA or verification ➤ Parents do not claim you as a dependent on their income taxes ➤ Student demonstrates total self-sufficiency ➤ You do not live with your parents and/or you and your parents are having a disagreement.
